We hope she will continue singing until she becomes a star in a great Musical Comedy. Good Luck "Lucy".

CLASS HISTORY

One September morning in 1941, forty four pupils made a mad dash for the back seats in the seventh grade room of Charlton High. We were reprimanded by Miss Manzi, whom we soon classified an entertaining but sharp tongued young lady. Our first few days in the yet unexplored school were exciting and entirely new to us, but before long we got the "run of the place". We still maintain that if the upper classmen had known the latest talent they were showing around we would have been less embarrassed in these trying times.

We elected Donald Keach-- President, Ruth McKinstry-- Vice President, Arthur Dodge-- Secretary, and Evelyn Robidoux--Treasurer, in charge of our non-existing money bags.

For the annual Junior Play Contest we presented "Wild Cat Willie Gets Brain Fever." The cast included Arthur Dodge, Donald Keach, Paul Arsenault, Ruby Clark, Nancy Ashworth, Evelyn Robidoux, and Rita Zinkowski. We all joined in the fear and excitement of our first school activity and managed to put on a good show, although we didn't win.

We gained a new member, Linda Kuroiwa, whose magnetic personality added a great deal to our class.

We made our quota in the magazine contest this year, and were proud to claim the third highest salesman in the school, namely, Evelyn Gates.

Arthur Dodge, David Norcross, Evelyn Robidoux, and Marie Fitzgerald made the honor roll this year.

A few of us had infrequent encounters with the much feared, in those days, Mr. Mushroe. We learned later that these trips were as unpleasant for him as they were for us.

Time passed quickly and before long it was June.

When September '42 came around, we found our class had diminished to 42 pupils, and we lost more during the year. We settled down to mark this year, under the guidance of Mrs. Madaus, whom we all classed as a benevolent and sweet lady.

Our class officers were, president--Evelyn Robidoux, vice president--Ruth McKinstry, secretary--Claire Gauthier, and treasurer-- Marie Fitzgerald.

We presented "Elmer and the Lovebug", in the Junior Play Contest. We enjoyed putting it on, but again we didn't win. The cast included Arthur Dodge, Nancy Ashworth, Rita Zinkowski, Evelyn Robidoux, Shirley Keefe, Robert Nichols, Ruth McKinstry and Paul Arsenault.

In basketball this year David Norcross belonged to the "Panthers" and Arthur Dodge to the "Blue Jays".

June marked the end of our Junior High School career, and we looked forward with fear and anticipation to our four years of high school life.

In September '43 we were Freshmen. Our young and pretty adviser Miss Cashen, made the year more endurable with her charm and understanding.

Our officers for the year were Arthur Dodge-- president, Norman Oliver--vice president, David Norcross-- secretary and Raymond Ashe-- treasurer.

Once again we hopefully presented a play in the Junior Play Contest. It was entitled "How Vulgar". The cast included Arthur Dodge, David Norcross, Raymond Ashe, Shirley Keefe, Nancy Ashworth and Evelyn Robidoux. No, we didn't win, but after all we still had three years to go.

Evelyn Gates was star salesman in the Magazine Contest this year.

We were represented in the Prize Speaking Contest by Evelyn Robidoux, in the Humorous Division and Ruby Clark in the Oratorical Division.

This year Arthur Dodge, Raymond Ashe and David Norcross went out for baseball. Arthur Dodge played catcher for the team. Evelyn Robidoux played on the girls' basketball team.

In intra-mural basketball, Nancy Ashworth, Marie Fitzgerald, Janice Wright and Agnes Blanchard played for the "Petticoat Girls"; Ruth McKinstry, for the "Bouncing Bets"; Evelyn Robidoux and Shirley Keefe, for the "Bloomer Girls."

In our sophomore year we had Mrs. Fiske for our home room teacher and were now only twenty in number.

To the Senior Play Contest we presented "Merry Molly Malone". The cast included Evelyn Robidoux, Nancy Ashworth, Ruth McKinstry, Agnes Blanchard, Arthur Dodge, Norman Oliver and Raymond Ashe. Even though we were expertly coached by Mrs. Fiske, we failed to win the cup.

Our officers for the year were Arthur Dodge, Ruth McKinstry, Linda Kuroiwa and Raymond Ashe in the usual order of offices.

We held a dance at the Charlton Grange to build up our treasury. The committee included most of the class, and it was a good success. The "Rythm Kings" furnished the music.

We always had the reputation of being lazy so we decided to change the consensus of opinion by really getting "on the ball". We won the War Bond Drive and were allowed to put on a "Truth or Consequence" program, which was held during an assembly. We also won the Magazine Contest. As a prize we went to the "Ice Follies" at the Boston Gardens, chaperoned by Mrs. Fiske and Mr. & Mrs. Baggs.

Ernest Hill starred on the basketball team this year. David Norcross played second base on the baseball team and Arthur Dodge retained his position as catcher. Evelyn Robidoux played on the girls varsity. Linda Kuroiwa, Nancy Ashworth and Marie Fitzgerald also went out for basketball. Evelyn Robidoux and Nancy Ashworth were cheerleaders this year.

After a strenuous school year we were all glad to see June come.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Hammond we started the Junior year with an enrollment of sixteen; we lost three but gained one, Dora Broga, a welcome addition to the class. Our class officers were Raymond Ashe, holding office of president, Ruth McKinstry, as vice-president, Evelyn Robidoux, as secretary and David Norcross, as treasurer.

Our play for the annual contest was "Wednesday Midnight". The cast included Evelyn Robidoux, Lucille Mongeon, Nancy Ashworth, Ruth McKinstry, Arthur Dodge, David Norcross, Raymond Ashe, Ernest Hill and Norman Oliver. We put on a good show but still couldn't get the cup.

We did our part to keep the minute man flag obtaining 100% for the entire year.

Two members of the class took part in the prize speaking contest. Raymond Ashe won first prize in the Oratorical Division and Evelyn Robidoux won first prize in the Dramatic Division. Both of these pupils represented the school at the National Forensic Contest at Shrewsbury. Evelyn Robidoux went to the final state elimination.

To the Senior Play Contest we presented "Merry Molly Malone". The cast included Evelyn Robidoux, Nancy Ashworth, Ruth McKinnstry, Anna Blanchard, Arthur Bodge, Norman Oliver and Raymond Ashe. and our class flowers, American Beauty roses and Lilies of the Valley..

Our Junior Prom took place in May. Russ Cole's orchestra played for the event. We had fun giving it, and everyone enjoyed himself. The entire class served on the committee with Mrs. Hammond acting as general chairman. Her patience and cooperation made the prom possible.

In the inter-class track meet the Junior boys won second place. Ernest Hill won second place in the 100 yard dash and third place in the 220 yard dash. In the baseball throw, Ernest Hill won first place and in the short put, he won first place and Norman Oliver, second.

David Norcross, Arthur Dodge and Raymond Ashe starred on the basketball and baseball teams this year. The girls that went out for basketball were Evelyn Robidoux, who made first team, Nancy Ashworth and Marie Fitzgerald. Evelyn Robidoux was manager. Evelyn Robidoux and Nancy Ashworth retained their position as cheer leaders.

Our triumphant year ended, and we all looked forward to being Seniors.

The following September found us with our dream come true. We were Seniors, but we surely didn't feel it. Mr. Berube, our friend and advisor for the year, kept us from having dull moments with his sharp wit and understanding.

We started the year with thirteen members. Pauline Kaufman, who joined us in September left shortly after. William Hilton also came and went leaving just a happy twelve.

Much ado over campaign! Evelyn Robidoux, whom we elected president, failed to return this year. The result was Dave Norcross-President, Ruth McKinstry-Vice President, Nancy Ashworth-Secretary, and Art Dodge-treasurer. Ray Ashe was President of the Student Council.

We presented "Mad Breakfast" in the play contest. Pupils in the cast were Ray Ashe, Art Dodge, Dave Norcross, Ruth McKinstry, Lucille Mongeon, Nancy Ashworth, Dora Broga, Colleen Tower, Yolande Arsenault and Marie Fitzgerald. There will be no further mention of the play. Stern words were brought forth by Treasurer Dodge, but, however, our Treasury was humble. We followed the lead of the Seniors of '46 and held an auction in the lower town hall. We canvassed the whole town and were rewarded with well over $100 for our treasury.

The entire Senior class was cast in the Senior Play, which was entitled "Tricking Tricksters". It was a great success and helped us to fill our treasury. We collected waste paper during the late fall and again in the spring which also helped fill our money bags.

Only three seniors went to the Music Festival this year; namely, Ruth McKinstry, Dora Broga and Lucille Mongeon.

The highest honors of the school, graduation speakers, went to Nancy Ashworth, Dora Broga, Ruth McKinstry and Yolande Arsenault.

Dave Norcross and Art Dodge starred on the first team in basketball. Dave, Dodge and Ray Ashe played on the baseball team. Nancy Ashworth, manager and Marie Fitzgerald starred on the Junior varsity.

During our Vacation, we went on our Class trip. All Seniors agree that this was our most enjoyable school activity. Chaperoned by Mr. Berube, Miss Berthiaume and Miss Putnam, we visited many famous landmarks and all had a wonderful time.

We, the Class of '47, sincerely hope that every class will enjoy its high school career at C.H.S. as much as we have.

CLASS PROPHECY

It is the year 1962. There is a bright sun shining. It is June 12th, and upon seeing the date on the calendar and realizing it is June 12th I am reminded of my graduation day fifteen years ago.

Since then, I have been to college; and after college I formed my own band, and now I have hit the "big name bracket" and have travelled all over the United States on playing engagements.

I don't have much time to myself, but in my travels, I have met all of my old classmates, and as this is June 12th it starts me to thinking of where I have met my classmates in the last six months.

During the winter months, I was down in Miami for two weeks. I met Dave Norcross who was staying there for the winter. Dave is a scientist, and he tells me he has improved Radar and he is now planning a trip to the moon in a Rocket ship, which he has invented.

When I was in Washington, D.C. I met Ray Ashe. We all remember that Ray was a very good orator when he was in high school and now he is still using that ability as he is President of the U.S. Senate. Ray told me Dora Broga was in Washington, D.C. too. Dora has a large chain of Doughnut shops in the United States, and her slogan is: "Even the hole of Dora's Super-Duper doughnuts taste good."

When winter had entered its prime, we arrived in New York. The first night there, I had off, so I went to some of the local night clubs. Among them was Billy Roses Diamond Horseshoe. There I got the surprise of my life. Marie Fitzgerald had her name in lights. She was the star chorus girl of the show. After the show, I met Fitzzy, and she told me how she had become rich and famous by being in the famous shows of the last few years. Fitzzy told me that we also had another classmate in New York. Yolande Arsenault was the head of the French Department at Columbia University. Fitzzy said that Yolande had also written two French books.

My booking agent informed me that I had one more city in which to play in the East. Well, it seems that in fifteen years since I had been in Charlton, Charlton had become a large, thriving city. I was booked to play at a very "ritzy" night club called "The Cat's Place" in Charlton. When I arrived there, I discovered "The Cat's Place" was owned by none other than Colleen Tower. Colleen told me that she named her club "The Cat's Place" because of her initials which are C.A.T. I had quite a long talk with Colleen, and she told me many of the happenings in Charlton since I left. She told me that she and Ruth McKinstry were the only two of my classmates that hadn't left Charlton. Ruth had married about six months after she graduated and since Ruth was voted "Most likely to marry", we had all expected this to happen.

After I left Charlton, my next booking was in Sun Valley, Idaho. It took about a week to reach Sun Valley, but when we got there, we stayed there for three weeks. Two days after I arrived, I met Nancy Ashworth. She said she was very glad to see me and asked me to tell her

My booking agent informed me that I had one more city in which to play in the East. Well, it seems that in fifteen years since I had been in Charleston, Charleston had become a large, thriving city. I was booked to play at a very "fitty" night club called "The Cat's Place" in Charleston. When I arrived there, I discovered "The Cat's Place" was owned by none other than Colleen Tower. all about our classmates. Well, I did, and after I had told her about all our classmates, I asked her to tell me about herself. She then told me that she was here at Sun Valley for a weeks rest. She had started her career as an actress on Broadway, but now she was modeling for fashion magazines and she liked the modeling better because it was much easier work. I might add that she had a 1962 Buick Convertible, so modeling must be a very good paying business also.

After I left Sun Valley, I went to California. When I reached there, I had about a weeks vacation so I went to Hollywood for a visit and tour of the moving picture studios. When I got inside, I could hear a girl singing a cowboy song. Now I immediately thought of Lucille Mongeon because she was such a wonderful yodeler back in our school days. When I could see this songstress, I couldn't believe my eyes. It was Lucille, and she was all "decked" out in a silver cowboy suit, and she looked very beautiful under the spotlight. I sat and listened for a while; and then when Lucille came off the set, I greeted her and we went out for lunch. Lucille told me that she had first started singing on the radio, but she had an offer to star in a cowboy hit in Hollywood, and she immediately accepted and has been there ever since.

While Lucille and I were still eating lunch, two young women came into the restaurant. One of the women was a blond, dressed in a business suit, the other woman was a very pretty redhead. As the two women came closer, I recognized them for they were Evelyn Gates and Ingrid Hammond. Lucille and I immediately invited them to sit down at our table. When we had all exchanged greetings, I asked them what they were doing in Hollywood.

Ingrid explained that she had taken over where Hedda Hopper had left off, and that she was now making gossip for the largest radio studios in Hollywood, and that she broadcasted all of the Hollywood news all over the country.

Evelyn told me that she was now vice-president of the largest newspaper in Los Angeles, and that she started as a journalist, but had gradually climbed the ladder of success, she explained that she had come to see Ingrid and Lucille in Hollywood and was glad that the four of us were all there at the same time.

Thus, after a very happy reunion I realized that our class prophecy was fulfilled.

CHARGE TO THE JUNIORS

As we, the class of 1947, leave Charlton High School, we wish to give the underclassmen the following advice:

First, Remember that since you will be the oldest group in the building, it is your duty to set a good example for all your underclassmen.

Second, Help to make your school a success by taking an active part in all activities; such as, magazine contests, Glee Club, Athletic Contests, and Student Council. Being active in these affairs displays your own talents just as it helps the school.

Third, Don't forget that your teachers are guides, helpers, and friends, and that, if you show the right spirit and do your best, they will be in a position to help you get the most out of school.

As president of the Senior Class, I take great pleasure in presenting this key of responsibility to the president of the Junior Class, Arthur Dugas, and in wishing this class good luck.

David Norcross,
Senior

WELCOME ADDRESS

As President of the class of 1947, I am pleased to extend a cordial welcome to our parents, relatives, friends, faculty members and underclassmen.

Now, as we become reminiscent regarding our high school days, we can't help feeling rather sad that the time for parting has really come. We do realize that our lives are richer and better because of the opportunities that we have enjoyed during the past four years.

David Norcross,
Senior

CLASS SONG

Tune: Memories

Words by

Ruth McKinstry

Here now our school days are ending,

Farewell to teachers we'll sing.

Years of happiness ending.

Saddens our hearts at their flight.

Refrain:

Memories! Memories

of happy years we've spent.

Days fled by--

It's now good-bye

To years of carefree joy.

Memories! Memories!

Among our classmates true.

The years have sped by-

And now it's adieu

To our classmates, our teachers and you.

"PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST"

As a participant in three Prize Speaking Contests, I have seen the advantages which this school activity gives to both the contestant and his audience.

The contestant gains a great deal of praise from appearing before an audience, which later proves invaluable in various community activities and class plays.

He also receives a number of points for the point award system in relation to his success in the various contests.

The audience is privileged to see a very fine evening of student activity at absolutely no expense. This contest is interesting to everyone in some manner, because he can be made aware of world conditions by the Oratorical Division, cry and shudder with the Dramatic Division, and laugh with joy at the Humorous Division.

When an evening of this type of program is presented one wonders why there isn't "Standing Room Only".

Perhaps the rather small audience could be explained by the fact that there is no charge.

Many times people feel that the more they pay for an entertainment, the better it is.

This is erroneous in some cases. Truer words were never spoken: "The best things of life are free." There is no charge for the beauties of nature or for glorious friendships.

I hope this has shown the value of the "Prize Speaking Contest, one of our school act-

BEWARE COMMUNISM

In this world of changing ideas and changing people, we all look forward to a brighter and happier tomorrow, but the question is: "Will this Utopia of tomorrow ever come?"

We know that most great men and statesmen are working toward this goal, but there is one element that can and will, if it is given a chance, wreck all our dreams of a democratic world. That element is Communism.

Communism already has quite a toe-hold in this world of ours; and before long, a battle between Communism and the forms of Democracy will occur. Karl Marx of Russia was the first man to introduce Communism as it is today, and since then it has spread by leaps and bounds to all parts of Asia and Europe and even to parts of America.

Communism may fit perfectly in a country where no private initiative is required and no headway in individual improvement is in need. That kind of country can surely not be the United States. If people in countries; such as, Russia, China and others in Europe do not wish private enterprise then by all means Communism might be better for them. China is the most recent country to fall under the Red Rule, but we must understand that a Communist China will also mean a Communist Asia.

So, if affairs in this country become trying, we must all remember to let Democracy work its own way rather than allow the Red Rule of Communism destroy private initiative forever.

EDUCATION

Education began in the earliest stage of the world. Of course, it wasn't the education we know today, but it was education.

The primitive man educated himself to get food and shelter; then later on, he found he needed protection against thieves who stole his food. In this he also educated himself. Thinking and using the mind had occurred to man, and the results were good for him.

As time went on, he learned how to use reason to help him figure out a way to make round wheels; and as his mental acumen grew, he began to think of ways to get out of doing the work that he found necessary. This is time when he found he could now train animals to carry loads and pull a set of wheels. The first animals that were trained were the dog and the horse.

Next came the making of government or way of ruling the people who had banded together to share shelter, food, and protection.

These primitive people had no teachers; they learned by doing, by watching, and by reasoning. They knew that if they cut a willow tree down, the roots would send up new shoots and soon a young tree would replace the old. They learned this by observing.

Therefore, their education came from observing, reasoning and experiencing. Our dictionary gives us the meaning of education as the "act, process or result of education: the systemic training of the moral and intellectual faculties."

In that case, education never stops. Each moment, these Primitive people were learning or were educating themselves.

Their ruler came to be the individual who had a few more developed brains or who used the ones he had to the best advantage.

Now let us look at our world; just the one in which we ourselves are concerned. Are we content in it, or do we find that once in a while we come across something and know that we can't make our brains recognize? An object, a phrase, a question in science, literature the workings of something mechanical, or the knowledge about music or paintings and the finer things of life often baffle us. Be honest. How much do we really know? Take a look around, I see a radio, a table, a calendar, and my dog. About the radio, I know that it is a device to pick out waves of sound from the atmosphere and that it is operated by electricity. About the rest of the things I mentioned, I know just a little more, and so you see, I need to know quite a good deal more about all the common things I see every day, let alone the extraneous things.

Education increases a person's poise, self confidence, his self esteem and gives him the respect of others. Of course, it also strengthens the moral integrity of that person. You'll find that, in all your dealings with mankind, education plays a part in every phase and every

A DAY IN JUNE

The sun is shining brightly;
It's beckoning me because
A lovely day it's going to be.
A robin sits on my window sill;
Whose cheerful cry gives me a thrill.
Nothing can go wrong this day
"It surely is wonderful," I say.
All the flowers are in bloom;
Their scents mingling makes sweet perfume.
What can be better than this day in June?

MY D. A. R. TRIP TO BOSTON

Rolling out of bed at six a.m. with eyes half closed, I headed for the stairs. Nearly missing a chair, knocking over the floor lamp, and feeling for the banister, I descended. This was the day I was to go to Boston as the Charlton High School Representative of the D.A.R. After washing the sleep from my eyes, hurriedly dressing and eating, I set out. As I was driving, I took myself as far as I was supposed to go, which was Howard Johnson's, in Oxford.

It was a beautiful day; the sun was shining; and the wind was blowing a young gale; but as the day wore on, my fingers and ears gradually thawed out, so that I could use them. For once in my life I was early; and as Howard Johnson's hadn't opened, I waited for seven fifteen to come (in the cold out-of-doors). Finally, the janitor took pity on me (as he saw that I was turning blue), so he unlocked the door and said that I might wait inside--if I wanted to do so. After making my way slowly to the door, for any sudden jar would have cracked a bone, I stood by a radiator and thawed out.

Then, as I realized what today was I began to get excited. Would I know any of the girls that were going? Soon a new Ford Business Coupe drove into the yard and tooted. In it were the girl from Oxford, Patricia Maro; the girl from Webster, Beverly Pellitier; our chaperons, Miss Ida Miller and Miss Frances Bradey, and a gentleman who was driving us to the Worcester Railroad Station.

The girls and I found some mutual acquaintances; and thus, I lost the feeling of being ill-at-ease. We looked over the snapshots in each other's wallets and counted our boy friends. I was left in the cold, for I have only one. All this occurred in the train station. As we ventured to the platform to await the train, we found another girl who was shivering. On questioning her, we found her to be Robin Hellar, from Rutland High School. Now our threesome was completed. Robin and I found that we knew some of the same people, and (continued) so, on the most modern train and the only train I have ever been on, we talked about them. As the train was a new one just like the pictures we have seen in advertisements; we really enjoyed our ride to Boston.

We arrived in Boston at nine-thirty. A short walk took us to the Copley Plaza, and here we were registered by our chaperons. Then we were directed to the gallery in the ballroom. There were one hundred sixty-three girls, who were already there. On the floor below us sat about two hundred women of all ages. On the platform (for the speakers) were about twenty chairs. Soon these chairs were almost filled. The few that were left empty were for those who were to be called to the platform during the meeting. The first speaker was the president of the D.A.R. Chapter. Next was Rev. Smith who led us in prayer. Our next speaker was Gov. Robert Bradford, who welcomed us to the city and praised the girls for exemplifying American womanhood to such high degree as to be chosen for a good citizenship award. He called us "the cream of the crop of American girls." Next the head of the Dept. of Education spoke on the value of educating women. We also received from the son of Mayor Curley a welcome.

After electing the officers for the coming year, we left the Copley Plaza and went to the Boston City Club for lunch. The Club is for men alone, and you can imagine what a surprise they got to look up and see about one hundred seventy-five females descending on them. We went to the ninth floor in a fast elevator; and by the time we got there, we didn't care to eat. The elevator stopped, and my feet kept right on coming up, until I was standing on my knees, but I wasn't the only one. Could this have been due to the handsome elevator boy?

After lunch, we all walked around the corner to the State House. There we were allowed to roam at will, but not to disturb anyone. This certainly is a large place. If you walk around in one corridor long enough, you will come back to the place where you started. After about an hour of walking and talking, we were all in need of a drink. Thinking we might find a fountain in the Ladies' Room, we went in there. Some of the girls who work in the offices were there and without any shyness we asked them where we could get a drink. They looked rather blank and said that they didn't know, but if we could go into some one's office we might find a water cooler in there. By then we were so dry we couldn't talk so we walked some more.

We passed group after group of girls all looking for a fountain. Every one was looking too hard for one and just as the thought slipped my mind, I saw one down at the end of a long corridor. I couldn't talk so I pointed, and our weary legs carried us swiftly to it. After the first sip, one of the girls managed to say, "Boy, is that cold!" She had no more spoken when a squeal went up from the lobby. We all looked up expecting to see Frank Sinatra. Instead about seventy of the girls besieged the water fountain. How did I know there were seventy? Because I held the thing to keep it running while they drank. But my drink at the end was worth it!

As it was now three o'clock, we returned to the Hall of Flags where all the flags that our country has ever had on any occasion in history were proudly displayed behind glass. (continued)

Here a colonel in the army arranged us in rows of fifteen, and took pictures of the group. Shortly after this, Governor Bradford came in to speak to us. He welcomed us to the State House and again commended us for our behavior. Then more pictures were taken, this time of the girl who won the trip to Washington. After this, the Gov. shook hands with the entire one hundred sixty three. After shaking hands with all of the girls, the Governor had to leave, but we were conducted on a tour of his private offices.

The furnishings were very luxurious, and the State seal was displayed on the paneling in ornament form. On the Governor's desk, was a picture of his family and one large picture of his wife. It made the room more friendly.

Next we were taken to the House of Representatives, where our representative, Frank Allen of Auburn, spoke personally to the girls of Spencer, Oxford, Webster, and Charlton. We sat in the gallery and listened to the bills as they were read. At first, none of the men seemed to be paying any attention to the speaker, and we began to wonder if all our bills went like that. But Mr. Allen explained that they were read three times and then passed. This happened to be the third reading and as they had all been agreed upon before, this reading was just a formality.

Before long, our glance was attracted to a moving object at the feet of one of the men. Upon closer observation, we found it to be a dog. As we watched the man sitting at that desk, we found that he wasn't looking at the pages of the booklet as were the others for he was blind. In a short while, he rose, and immediately the dog jumped to its feet. The dog stood still until his master had grasped the handle of the strap, and then he lead his master out of our sight. It was the first time that many of us had seen a true seeing-eye dog. Later we were informed that three of the men there were blind.

Now, it was time to catch our bus back to the station and to end our day at the Convention. Wearily we trooped down the broad stairs and out into the brisk sunshine, then to the hotel where we were to meet our chaperons. We then took a taxi to the station and had just enough time to drink a frappé before train time. All in all, I had a wonderful time, and I met some of the nicest girls anyone could find. After all, the Governor had called us "the cream of the crop."

NEW ENGLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL
March 19-22

Throughout my entire life, I believe that there is one event that will stand out in my mind as surpassing all others; namely, the trip to the New England Music Festival at Brattleboro, Vermont.

On Wednesday, March 19, Lucille Mongeon, Ruth McKinstry, and I with Miss Florence Putnam as our instructor, left the Charlton High School around eleven o'clock.

First, we had a few errands to do; such as, getting the car well supplied with gas and oil for the trip, and picking up Lucille's luggage at her home, and by the time this was completed, it was twelve o'clock. We rode for about an hour and a half, when, all of a sudden, we reached a section of the road where one could go in three different directions, and the signs didn't seem to help us, so we inquired and found out that we had turned off our right route about seven miles back. We turned back and got on the right route and worked our way as far as Orange, Massachusetts, where we stopped for a few minutes to rest by having a dish of ice cream. It was then somewhere around two o'clock, so we jumped into the car and continued on our journey.

We arrived in Brattleboro at three-thirty. Miss Putnam first registered us at the Community Center, and then she took us to our lodgings.

Ruth, Lucille and I were fortunate enough to be able to stay at the same home. The dwelling was about three and a half miles out of town. As this was a farm, Ruth and I felt right at home. The family was very nice and helped us in every way they could. We unpacked our clothing, and then we went back to town with Miss Putnam.

Our first meeting was from 5:00-5:30; then we went to supper at the Centre Church where we had our classes assigned. After supper, we followed the crowd to the Green Street School, where our first choral rehearsal was held at seven P.M. We worked very diligently until nine o'clock. We were all invited to attend the Welcome Dance, held at the Community Center, which, of course, we wouldn't miss, even though we were just about exhausted. We arrived home that night around twelve. Lights were to be out by twelve-thirty and we just made it.

Thursday morning we rose about seven thirty, ate breakfast with our host and hostess, and then went to our rehearsal, which was held at nine A.M. Rehearsal ended around eleven, so we decided we would explore the town. We did some shopping. At twelve o'clock, we went to dinner and reported for our second rehearsal, which was from 1:00-3:30 P.M. Ruth and I went on a tour scheduled for that afternoon, - a tour which included a visit to the "A. G. Spalding and Bros. Sporting Goods Company", where tennis and badminton rackets and baseballs are made. Our next factory was the Estey Organ Company. We also went to the new Minshall-Estey Organ Company, which produces electric organs. Men showed us their factories, and they also had a couple of men play the organs for us. We enjoyed the tour very much.

NEW ENGLAND MUSIC FESTIVAL

March 12-13

Throughout my entire life, I believe that there is one event that all stand out in my mind as being all others; namely, the trip to the New England Music Festival at Waterville, Vermont.

On Wednesday, March 12, I left Waterville with my family and I with Miss Florence Brown as my chaperone. Left the Waterville High School around eleven o'clock.

First, we had a few friends to see us, leaving the car well supplied with gas and all for the trip, and picking up Lucille's luggage at her home, and by the time this was completed, it was twelve o'clock. We rode for about an hour and a half, when, all of a sudden, we reached a section of the road where one could see in three different directions, and the signs didn't seem to help us, so we indicated and found out that we had turned off our right hand side and turned back. We turned back and got on the right hand side, worked our way as far as Orange, Massachusetts, where we stopped for a few minutes to rest by having a drink of ice cream. It was then somewhere around two o'clock, as we jumped into the car and continued on our journey.

The family was very nice and helped us in every way they could. We stayed in our rooming, and then we went back to town with Miss Florence.

Our first meeting was from 8:00-9:00; then we went to supper at the Centre Church where we had our classes assigned. After supper, we followed the crowd to the Green Street School, where our first general rehearsal was held at seven P.M. We worked very diligently until nine o'clock. We were all invited to attend the Western Dance, held at the Community Center, which, of course, we wouldn't miss, even though we were just about exhausted. We arrived home that night around twelve. Lights were to be out by twelve-thirty and we just made it.

Thursday morning we rose about seven thirty, ate breakfast with our host and hostess, and then went to our rehearsal, which was held at nine A.M. Rehearsal ended around eleven, so we decided we would explore the town. We did some shopping. At twelve o'clock, we went to dinner and reported for our second rehearsal, which was from 1:00-3:00 P.M. Ruth and I went on a trip scheduled for that afternoon. A tour which included a visit to the A. G. Spaulding and Sons, Sport-ing Goods Company, where tennis and badminton rackets and tennis balls are made. Our next factory was the Lacey Corden Company. We also went to the new Minneapolis-Lacey Corden Company, which produces electric organs. We showed us their factories, and they also had a lot of other things the organ for us. We enjoyed the tour very much.

After this tour, we had a few spare minutes so we went to the Community Center Recreation Room and danced. Thursday night we had our rehearsal from 7:00-9:30 P.M., and this was the last time we were allowed to use our music sheets. While we were singing, records were made, and then the officials played them for us, so we could hear our errors. Our schedule on Friday was similar to that of Thursday except for the evening rehearsal at which we were placed according to our height. This took a long time because there were three hundred and thirty voices in the Chorus; therefore, our rehearsal was shorter.

Saturday was the big day. We gave the concert in the Latch's Memorial Theatre. In the morning, we practiced in different sections the songs that our director Mr. Woodbury, thought were most important. Our afternoon concert began at two p.m. and was broadcast over station W.K.N.E., Keene, New Hampshire. We were through with the concert at four-thirty p.m.; so all three of us went to Miss Putnam's room in the Brook's Hotel and rested until supper. After supper we returned to the hotel and dressed in evening gowns for the evening concert. This concert was over about ten o'clock, and then we went to another dance at the Community Center.

Sunday morning, we bid our host and hostess good-bye and then we all went to church. After dinner we began our journey home, and arrived in Charlton at six p.m.

It seems unfortunate that everyone doesn't have the opportunity to attend one of these annual concerts at one time or another because I am positive he would enjoy it just as much as I did, despite the fact it required a great deal of work to learn the words, expressions and all the other things necessary for a mastery of music.

SPRING

Spring is coming !

Pines are thrusting their new green spray;

Their cones fall bouncing to the ground.

Birds are returning each spring day.

Rabbits frolic in their new coats of brown.

What is causing this great change?

Spring has come again to reign.

Spring is coming!

The sun sends forth its shining rays,

Down to the earth where children play.

It shines on brilliant gleaming pools --

Where frogs are sitting on their brook stools.

What is causing this great change?

Spring has come again to reign.

And when the day is fading on

And each brilliant scene is gone,

Don 't feel sad, for in the morn

Spring again is once more born.

What is causing this great change?

Spring again has come to reign.

SPRING

Spring is coming!
Pines are thrusting their new green sprays;
Their cones fall bounding to the ground.
Birds are returning each spring day.
Rabbits frolic in their new coats of brown.
What is causing this great change?
Spring has come again to reign.

Spring is coming!
The sun sends forth its shining rays,
Down to the earth where children play.
It shines on brilliant gleaming pools--
Where frogs are sitting on their brook stools.
What is causing this great change?
Spring has come again to reign.

And when the day is fading on
And each brilliant scene is gone,
Don't feel sad, for in the morn
Spring again is once more born,
What is causing this great change?
Spring again has come to reign.

HISTORY OF OUR CONSTITUTION

In the present chaos of our post-war world of readjustment you may ask, of all topics, why select "History of Our Constitution", because only through a clear picture of the past can we understand and appreciate present world conditions.

Contrary to popular belief, the history of our Constitution did not begin with the Constitutional Convention at Philadelphia. It went back to the signing of the English Magna Charta, The Petition of Right, and the Bill of Right--three documents known as the Pillars of the English Constitution.

With the landing of the colonists at Jamestown, Virginia in the spring of 1607, the British government was first introduced into America.

In this history of our Constitution, from which we learn that American character traits remain the same from one generation to another, the year of 1619 is of significance because, at that time representative government came to America.

Later, other colonists, angry with the British government for taxing them without representation, were responsible for the first organized action of protest--the Stamp Act Congress.

During our present world war, years later, this same American spirit of protest against unfair conditions was evinced in the numerous meetings of Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill.

At the First Continental Congress, called to make a decision regarding England's harsh treatment of the colonies, a Declaration of Rights and Grievances was sent to the King. The fathers of our Constitution knew the meaning of the words oppression and tyranny. To meet this crisis of oppression, they provided for a second Continental Congress, whose greatest achievement was the framing of the Articles of Confederation, which had many defects. Following World War I, the League of Nations, as outlined by President Wilson, contained just such similar defects. In the incipient years of American government, under the Articles of Confederation, the larger states objected because each state was given one vote regardless of size. The world witnessed an analogous condition in the Veto Power recently used by Russia in the United Nations Conference.

The forming of our Constitution was not an easy task, nor was it completed over night. It was adopted, as was our recent United Nations Organization, only after thorough meditation and argument. At the Mount Vernon Conference, in the eighteenth century, the group of commissioners, who were leading men of that time, assembled and discussed the navigation of the Potomac and decided to call another convention. Just so in our twentieth century did the outstanding leaders of the Bretton Woods Conference decide to call further meetings.

The delegates to the next Philadelphia Convention chose Washington as president of the group and decided to draw a new Constitution. Here, the first difficulty that arose was that the smaller states were afraid of being overshadowed by the larger states so New Jersey proposed a plan whereby the representation to Congress was to be chosen according to states regardless of size. Years later, we find a similar objective in the Veto Plan of our Big Four.

The Constitution; as adopted in its final form with the three departments-- Legislative, Judicial, and Executive-- provided that each department should act as a check on the other with the President acting, not as an autocratic tyrant, but as a democratic leader, whose aim should be to uphold the principles of the American way of life.

Because of broad interpretation, implied powers, and numerous amendments, our Constitution has been modified to fit all situations and has become-- as our forefathers intended that it should-- a living document. Nevertheless, the very foundation of this document, which consists not of mere rules, but of the principles of the American Way of Life-- the belief in the importance of the rights of the individual has never been changed, and, God grant, it will never be changed.

A majority of people favored the Constitution because they had seen how miserably the Articles of Confederation had failed. Likewise today, popular opinion favors the United Nations' Organization as everyone vividly remembers the complete failure of the League of Nations after the World War I. By carefully analyzing the history of our Constitution, we gain a much better knowledge of the world and strive, in the words of our great American leader- Abraham Lincoln- " to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us. That from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. That we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain "-- For only if world peace becomes a reality and not just a mere phrase can we profit by lessons taught in the History of our Constitution.

THE CRISIS

For Linda Wilson, the day had been one filled with confusion and tenseness that accompany a strange atmosphere- this was her first day at the Washington Street Boarding-School. It was her first day, in fact, at any boarding school. In the evening, Linda had welcomed the opportunity to relax in the reception hall, where she had started knitting; while her schoolmates, many of whom she did not know, busied themselves with reading, writing letters, and similar tasks. The girls were unaware of the fact that Linda knitted with only one hand for they had not yet observed the artificial arm which was almost wholly concealed by the long sleeve of Linda's sweater.

In her tenth year, Linda had been stricken with cancer of the bone, and shortly afterward, her arm had been amputated and replaced with an artificial limb so that only its inflexibility showed the difference. For three years, Linda had gone to private school. Her parents, moderate in means, had made the mistake of sending Linda to a private school. They hoped that it would be easier for Linda there, for she was a shy, self-conscious girl, and did not make friends easily. The girls at the private school, all considerably wealthier than Linda, had regarded her as inferior, though she had learned to do many things as well as they despite her handicap.

Fortunately, for Linda, her parents had found it hard to meet the cost of private school expenses; so Linda had been sent to the Washington Street Boarding-School where she was to live with girls of her own social standing and with those younger and older than she. But most important of all, Linda was to overcome her unhappiness.

Now, the girls, pretending to be absorbed in their recreation, stole occasional glances at the new girl, whom they thought rather eccentric. One particularly curious girl of eight, Sheila Ryan, found fascination in Linda's swiftness; but she noticed that Linda held one hand stiffly while she knitted with the right. After a long meditation, she guessed the truth, and in her surprise, uttered a loud "Oh!" In answer to the questions the older girls asked, Sheila, with a child's cruel frankness, pointed her finger at Linda and exclaimed, "Look! Linda's arm is crippled!"

Every girl in the room stared at Linda's artificial hand. Linda could do nothing but leave the reception hall. Back in her own room, she wondered why such an unimportant thing as an artificial arm should cause so much excitement.

A gentle knock at the door roused Linda from her thinking; and though she did not recognize the voice that asked politely, "May I come in?" she opened the door without hesitation. A girl of perhaps fifteen entered with some cookies and hot chocolate and explained, "I brought you these from the kitchen. We would like to apologize to you because we didn't mean to hurt your feelings. You see, you knitted so well and we were so amazed that I guess we forgot to practice the Golden Rule."

Linda then decided to forget the whole incident, for she was so pleased with the kindness of the girls that she returned to the reception hall with her new friend. This incident was a crisis in Linda's girlhood because it was the first time she had even been just one of the girls.

SEVENTH GRADE YEARLY REPORT

In September when the seventh grade started its school year, there were 48 pupils enrolled. By April, four of our members had left the class. Those who left included Eleanor Andersen, Ruth Anderson, Leo Farragher and Paul La Certe.

On October 25, 1946, the school sponsored a play contest. The seventh grade presented "Herbie's First Date." The cast included Robert Gale, Joan Mushroe, Sylviagene Schilz, Muriel Davis, Lois Cummings, John Duggan, and Samuel Di Pietro. Although we did not win first place, we felt that the production was a great success. Acting as coach was our home-room teacher, Miss Claire R. Berthiaume.

The pupils who have been on the honor roll for this year are as follows: Joan Mushroe, Sylviagene Schilz, Muriel Davis, and Jean McKissick.

Two pupils from our home-room, Muriel Davis and Ann Roberts, took part in the prize-speaking contest held March 14. They competed in the dramatic group; and Ann Roberts won second prize.

Class officers who were elected were President, Francis Burns; Vice-President and acting treasurer, Jean McKissick; and acting Secretary, Muriel Davis.

The seventh graders who were represented on the basketball team were Joan Mushroe, Muriel Davis, Barbara Hilton, Joan Sullivan, Jean McKissick, and Shirley Casey. One of our members, Eldon Turner, made the boys' second team.

We offered our services to the Junior Red Cross by writing letters of interest to foreign pupils, and also by contributing to the Junior Red Cross Fund.

Also, in the annual magazine contest, we were willing to help. Even though we won none of the rewards, we enjoyed working for our school. We displayed our salesmanship to the best of our ability.

The latest development at Charlton High School in which the seventh grade is represented is the Junior Glee Club. The voices of the following members will be heard: Muriel Davis, Josephine Hiscox, Elaine Caplette, Lorraine Hammond, Joan Mushroe, Barbara Hilton, Joan Sullivan, Carol Warren, Mary Jane Cody, Rose Porter, Sylviagene Schilz, Josephine Porter, Ann Roberts, Eleanor Le Blanc, Jean McKissick, Barbara Williams, Gloria Duquette, Shirley Casey, William Reil, Eldon Turner, Francis Burns, and Gilbert Mann.

SENIOR CLASS FINALS

The class of '47 started its senior year with twelve members and happily ended with twelve. We are one of the smallest classes to be graduated from Charlton High.

The class officers were president, David Norcross; vice president, Ruth McKinstry; treasurer, Arthur Dodge; and secretary, Nancy Ashworth.

We busied ourselves during the year with attempts to procure money to enlarge our treasury. In October we collected paper, in November we had an auction at the Town Hall with Barney Richards as auctioneer, in December we sold Christmas Cards and during April and May we had another paper drive.

Ruth McKinstry represented our school in the annual D.A.R. convention in Boston this year.

EXCHANGE EDITOR'S REPORT

"The Peter's Piper," one of the papers which we have received, is well arranged and is very attractive.

Another paper which we received is "The Stylus", from Northboro. It is superior to many papers because of the fact that separate sections are assigned for poetry, reading and humor.

More issues of the "Cardinal" have been received from Albion, Nebraska, and we have noticed that it has improved a great deal.

Many more papers have been received since the time of our last report, but it is impossible for us to discuss them all at this time.

We hope to establish a much larger Exchange Department by next year.

PRE-DRIVERS' CLUB

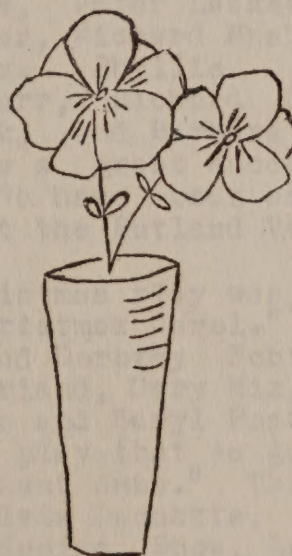

This year our club, consisting of sixteen members was under the supervision of Mr. Mushroe.

The only officer of this club was Lucille Mongeon, the president.

We have completed the textbook, "Man and the Motor Car" and have reviewed each chapter in order to prepare ourselves for the test given at the end of the school year to determine whether or not we would be excused from the usual questions asked the applicant when applying for a license.

The purpose of this club is to develop the right attitude in the minds of those who will be future drivers as well as an understanding of the rules, regulation, and the mechanism of a car.

STUDENT COUNCIL REPORT

Student Council officers for the past year have been as follows: Raymond Ashe, president; David Norcross, vice president; Evelyn Gates, secretary; and Phyllis Watson, treasurer. The council consists of twenty-one members.

This year, the annual play contests were held as usual. The senior and junior divisions were given the 18th and 25th respectively.

Student Council tickets were sold again this year, as it has been the custom for many years. The tickets were $2.00 payable 20 cents a month. These tickets could be used for all activities.

As the Curtis Magazine Plan in the past, had always proved very successful, we decided to use it again. We didn't attain our goal $1500, but we certainly made a very good attempt. The money we earned is to be used for school purposes.

This year the Student Council has sponsored three assemblies, "Henry Gerald", who showed the power of mind over matter, "Harvey Davies", who played the piano, and "The Camerons", who were magicians.

Roger Deveau was elected as the new baseball manager, and Kenneth Anderson as his assistant.

Phyllis Watson and Richard Smith represented our school at the Student Council District meet at Shrewsbury. Sally Mann and Phyllis Watson went as delegates to the State meet at Wellesley on May 3.

Sewing Club Report

The Sewing Club is composed of twelve very enthusiastic members, guided by Mrs. Paul Moffatt.

Yolande Arsenaault was elected president.

The beginning of this year was devoted to sewing for ourselves. In January, we turned our attention to knitting. Everyone helped so a beautiful afghan for the Red Cross was finally completed.

Some of the girls even knit for themselves as well as for the Red Cross.

With the arrival of spring, we turned our attention once again toward the field of sewing.

surer.

Our first debate was to be with Shrewsbury High School, but because we didn't get material from the Forensic League in time, and because of conflict of the play contest rehearsals, we were unable to prepare an acceptable debate.

Our next debate was with Grafton High School. We arrived in Grafton about fifteen minutes before the debate was scheduled to begin because the driver of our car had to repair a blow-out. Much to our chagrin we lost the debate. But the work of our debaters was commended by the Grafton team and directors.

We took our debating team to Ashburnham, Massachusetts on May 17th to compete in the National Forensic League Debates.

Girls' Basketball Report

The girls' basketball team consisted of fifteen members this year.

The first team members were as follows: Forwards, Captain Leona Hilton, Sally Mann, and Irene Boulanger; Guards, Evelyn Murkland, Eunice Snow, and Shirley Denault. The first team subs were Phyllis Gendron, and Dorothy Cook.

We played three games in town and three games out of town. These games were played with Oxford, Spencer, and Southbridge. The second team also played six games.

Although, we were not very successful in winning the games, we were not beaten too badly, thanks to the excellent playing of our captain and star Leona Hilton. One referee told our coach, she has potentialities of a great player, but one man cannot make the entire team. We hope that Leona will get greater fame.

Respectfully submitted,
